NUTLEY, N. J., April 17.—Seven bandits armed with sawed-off shot-guns and revolvers looted the baggage car safe of an Erie railroad train today in a daring morning robbery at a tiny station in the heart of a residential section.

First reports obtained from Newark detectives, set the amount of loot at $38,000, but subsequent information was that the bandits obtained only $1,605 for their trouble.

Loot Is Listed
The figure came from state police, who said the loot was composed of one $500 package of coins, two $200 packages of coins, one $50 package of bills and another package of $655 in coin.

State police said a package of x-ray equipment valued at $50 also was stolen.
Railway express agents officials said the money was enroute to the People's National bank of Belleville from the Federal Reserve bank in New York. They said it was carried by train to Paterson and there transferred to the Newark branch of the Erie.

Ohio Bank Robbers Get $1,000

(By Associated Press)
CELINA, April 17.—Two men, one carrying a machine gun, robbed the People's bank at Port Recovery, 14 miles southwest, of an estimated $1,000 to $1,500 shortly after 10 a. m. today.

George H. Horne, assistant cashier, Marie Brown and Margaret Schneider, bookkeepers, were held up by the pair, who locked them in a washroom before escaping in an automobile.

"A good looking young fellow wearing brown gloves came in the bank and handed me a $10 bill," Horne said. "He wanted ten ones and when I gave them to him he pulled out an automatic pistol."

"Then the other fellow, wearing an overcoat and carrying a machine gun, came in."

"They debated taking one of us with them, but decided to loot in the washroom. They were in the bank less than two minutes," Horne estimated the loss. He said most of the bank's money was in a vault protected by a time lock.

Port Recovery is a village of 1,118 located near the Indiana border.

Rescuers Blasting Passage To Trio Trapped In Mine

Dig Feverishly Toward 141-Foot Level of Moose River Plant In Race With Death

Dr. Robertson

(By Associated Press)
MOOSE RIVER, N. S., April 17.—John Hennigan, blasting expert said today that one more blast will permit rescuers to reach what may be a clear passage to the 141-foot level of the Moose River gold mine where three men have been trapped since Sunday night.

A big scoop crane worked for hours digging out debris from a terrific blast at 2 a. m. which tore a hole in the shaft eight feet deep and almost 20 feet wide.

Rocks were hurled as far as the mine's bankhead, 300 feet away, by the explosion of a case and a half of dynamite concentrated in an area of eight square feet.

Work also was forging ahead on two other fronts but the concentration was on the meager slope, through which Dr. D. E. Robertson, H. G. Magill and Charles Alfred Scadding will be rescued if they are still alive.

It was feared that the three men—granting they were not killed by the cave-in—might die of exposure if they were not reached quickly.

A diamond drill brought into use yesterday in an effort to sink a hole through which to drop food and water, was boring through rock at a depth of 30 feet. Quicker progress was expected when the rock stratum was penetrated. The trio was trapped at the 141 foot level.

PRIMARY FAILS TO WORRY DAVEY

Declares He's Confident
In Talk at Steubenville Rally

(By Associated Press)
STUEBENVILLE, April 17.—Gov. Martin L. Davey told a gathering of Democrats here last night that he was not worried about the primary and was confident of re-election.

His primary opponent, Congressman Stephen M. Young of Cleveland, was invited to address the meeting, but did not appear. Davey said Young, who for many weeks was undecided about entering the campaign, was like the immortal Finnegan.

"He's out again, in again, gone again, Finnegan," Davey said.

Cites accomplishments of his administration and said that the carrying out of recommendations of the Ohio government survey had resulted in a $5,000,000 annual saving to the state.

He discussed his vetoes of appropriations bills and said they had saved the state from bankruptcy or new taxes. In connection with the vetoes, one of which lopped $1,266,500 from the Ohio state university budget and started a long controversy, Governor Davey explained why Notre Dame defeated Ohio State in football last fall.

"They didn't show the proper respect for the governor's office," he said. "They'll have to show it if they expect to win any more games."

Although the interior of the postoffice building was painted in 1930, the exterior has not been taken care of for at least 10 years, Beardmore added. The project also will include improvement of walks and driveways around the building.

HIGHWAY AIDS DENY SEEKING CAMPAIGN CASH

Wheatley, Rafferty Assert Innocence, Following Indictments

"DIDN'T SOLICIT",
ENGINEER SAYS

Prosecutor George Lafferty
Confers Today
With Bricker

LISBON, April 17.—Robert S. Wheatley of Salineville, resident engineer for the state highway department, and Jack Rafferty of Salem, highway department employee, today declared their innocence of charges of soliciting nine civil service employees for Democratic campaign contributions.

Peace Court Monday
Wheatley and Rafferty were indicted jointly by the grand jury on charges of soliciting funds. They are scheduled to appear before Judge W. F. Lones in common pleas court Monday.

In the meantime, Prosecuting Attorney George L. Lafferty, who began the inquiry on instructions of Attorney General John W. Bricker, conferred with the attorney general today in Columbus.

After Bricker had been advised of the return of the indictment here, Lafferty was instructed to go to Columbus to review the two cases with counsel of the attorney general's staff.

Prosecutor Lafferty said the grand jury's investigation grew out of a letter from the attorney general who said that he had been informed campaign funds had been solicited from civil service employees in some state departments. He asked county prosecutors throughout the state to make separate investigations.

Reaffirms Innocence
Wheatley said both he and Rafferty are innocent of the charges. "I have never solicited or received contributions from civil service employees," Wheatley said. "I have made three unsuccessful attempts to contact Prosecutor Lafferty to advise him of my innocence."

War On Disease Is Gaining, Health Expert's Figures Show

Struggle Continues, Says Michael Kley, Who Advocates Increased Funds for Public Health

Recommending a larger expenditure for public health in Salem, and deploring "unnecessary deaths" from accidents, Michael Kley, welfare representative of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company of New York, gave an interesting interpretation of the development of public health and progress in the conservation of life before the Kiwanis club at the Memorial building Thursday noon.

He was presented by Roy Sharkey.

Kley showed the steady gain in control of smallpox, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, diphtheria, and other contagious diseases. He gave comparative figures for the United States, the state and Salem.

The practical application of modern methods of public health, he pointed out, has saved many lives, decreased human suffering, and made possible great advance in the social welfare of our people.

Life Expectation Lengthened
"It is estimated that expectation of life at birth in the United States in the year 1800 was only 39 years," the speaker declared, in summing up scientific progress in the health realm. "A child born today has a life expectancy of about

MADRIDWORKERS DECLARE STRIKE

Protest Against "Fascist Provocations" and New Conflict

By ALEXANDER H. UHL,
Associated Press Foreign Staff.
MADRID, April 17.—Madrid workers declared an unofficial general strike, affecting transportation and construction, today in protest against "Fascist provocations."

The strike followed an open threat by Socialists and Communists to take reprisals against "Fascist terror" as a result of a fresh conflict late yesterday in which at least three persons were killed and 40 wounded. The capital was guarded heavily.

Leave Jobs
Although Socialist headquarters said there would be no general strike, the workers left their jobs apparently of their own accord. Street cars and taxicabs disappeared from the streets and workers who had reported on their jobs went home.

Labor officials opposed the strike, but when the workers arrived for duty this morning they talked the situation over and decided on the unofficial strike, probably to last 24 hours.

Stores began to close gradually, chiefly in the workers' districts, while housewives rushed to buy supplies. The basic services, such as water, light, gas, telephones and railroads, were not affected.

Special measures were taken to assure the populace of bread, gas, water and electricity, with military services delegated to those tasks.

Union Opposes Strike
Although officials of the general workers union, which is Socialist, opposed the strike, the syndicalist national labor federation favored it.

Police reports said several shots were fired on workers in the Cuatro Caminos district, but that no one was injured.

The leftists, charging Fascists with responsibility for the latest shootings, issued a manifesto in the Casa Del Pueblo, declaring that they would employ counter-measures if they found that the "provocations" continue a day longer.

The government announced that Amos Salvador, minister of the interior, resigned because of sickness and that Casares Quiroga, former interior minister under Premier Azana, was resuming the post provisionally.

The running gun battle ended when the motor car plunged into the Ohio river.

Arrest 8 Drivers For Speeding In City School Zones

Police Chief Ralph N. Stoffer issued a warning today to motorists not to exceed a speed limit of 20 miles while passing through school zones in the city and, "above all, drive carefully."

The greatest tendency for speeding is on East State st., where St. Paul's Catholic school and McKinley school are located, the chief said.

Since yesterday the officers have arrested eight motorists, charged with either speeding or passing other vehicles within a school zone. Each was fined $1 by Mayor George Harhoff. They included: W. POLICE OFFICER FACING CHARGE

Begin Investigation Of Claim That Captain
Accepted Bribes

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, April 17.—Police Chief George J. Matowitz assigned Inspector James J. Hughes and Deputy Inspector James E. Veasey to investigate and report today on charges against Police Captain Louis Cadek, who was indicted by the county grand jury yesterday for solicitation and acceptance of bribes.

Arraignment of Cadek on the indictments was set for today before Common Pleas Judge Frederick P. Walther. County Prosecutor Frank T. Cullinan said that Cadek made deposits totaling $109,000 in savings and loan companies while serving as a $3,500-a-year officer.

Withhold Decision
Safety Director Elmer Ness said that if departmental charges were filed against Cadek on the basis of the investigation by Hughes and Veasey, he probably would withhold final decision until some disposition was made of the criminal charges.

Gerard J. Pilliod, attorney for Cadek, said his client would plead innocent to the charges but declined to make a statement.

On two counts of the indictment, Cadek is charged with soliciting and accepting two automobiles from John Brodzinski and Henry Zolnowski "to influence him with respect to his official duties as police captain in the enforcement of the laws of the state of Ohio, particularly relating to the possession and sale of intoxicating liquor."

The indictment alleged the automobiles were accepted in 1924 and 1927.

Three other counts in the indictment charged the officer with soliciting and accepting bribes of approximately $26,000.

The American girl professed to know nothing about the former wife before her marriage. Her maiden name was restored.

Diplomatic Committee of 13 Agrees On Futility of Efforts

ITALY ADVANCES

But African Delegation
Announces Complete
Rejection

(Copyright, 1936, The Associated Press)
GENEVA, April 17.—The League of Nations' committee of 13 agreed today that attempts to effect a reconciliation in the Italo-Ethiopian war have failed.

It is this committee which, for months past, has tried to effect peace in East Africa through diplomatic channels.

Its decision came after the Ethiopian delegation had rejected modified peace proposals submitted by Premier Mussolini of Italy.

The rejection was described as "complete."

The Ethiopian action followed an Italian offer to let the League have the right to keep constantly in touch with direct negotiations between the Italian high command and the Ethiopian government for a settlement of the war in east Africa.

Several members of the committee of 13, arriving for that body's meeting, said that in view of Ethiopia's rejection, there seemed to be nothing to do except declare that conciliation efforts had collapsed.

The league announced, as the commission went into session shortly after 4 p. m., that it had

DISTANT BRIDGES

The current depression, now believed to be in the convalescent stage, precludes any excessive worry about the depressions of the future. Yet, because it seems foolish to assume that the United States is fighting a depression to end depressions, considerable thought is being given to distant bridges which must be crossed sometime in the future.

Stimulus to that kind of thought has been provided by the proposal to impose heavy taxes on corporate reserves, which represent a form of insurance against lean days. The Roosevelt administration has provoked a charge of shortsightedness by seeming to reason that no harm will be done by making business less capable of withstanding a future depression than business was at the beginning of the present economic illness, still grave despite the fact the crisis was survived.

Additional stimulus to apprehension of another era of lean days has been provided by the national debt. While experts have been arguing that the debt could be much greater than it is, more ordinary and possibly more realistic observers have been thinking that if the country had not possessed a vast reserve of credit in 1929 it might not have survived the unusual drain on its resources. They have been wondering what might happen if another depression were to occur before the debt could be reduced and remembering that even in the boom days of Coolidge the treasury was able to retire only a few billions of indebtedness with the profits of prosperity.

There is a word in the vocabularies of economists and businessmen which rarely issues from the mouths of government officials—"prudence." In its usual application it means "to give some thought today to what might happen tomorrow." It is too obvious to be questioned that the present government in Washington, either from choice or from necessity, is not being prudent. Despite more than usual emphasis on the better world which will be the result of its policies, it does not choose to emphasize at all the practical means of securing its future. The new deal, which frankly is committed to a policy of expediency, has asked the country to believe that tomorrow will take care of itself.

PERPETUAL MOTION

Apparently the WPA will go on forever. Dr. Carl Watson, state administrator, has been ordered to instruct district directors to prepare for another year's extension after the present authorization expires next June 30.

Announcements from Washington frequently have foretold drastic relief economies and a gradual tapering of WPA expenditures to the desirable point of zero. In the last few days Ohio has seen the determination of Harry Hopkins to cut WPA rolls weaken before resolute opposition. More than 30,000 men were to be laid off in anticipation of their being absorbed in public work projects and private industry. Those men, in all probability, will continue to draw WPA checks, at least until June 30. Dr. Watson already has issued instructions to ferret out enough projects to last until but not to go beyond that date. The hunt for projects which are not too obviously useless is only one of the minor tragic comedies of federal relief administration.

All Dr. Watson is waiting for now is word that congress has approved President Roosevelt's request for a new relief appropriation of $1,500,000,000—on the President's terms. This amount, together with surpluses from previous appropriations, will suffice for relief requirements for the next fiscal year only if industry does what Mr. Roosevelt says it must do to thin the ranks of the unemployed. As has been pointed out before, industry, under present restrictive laws, is unlikely to be able to do much cooperating with a view to transferring large numbers of WPA workers to private payrolls. It seems logical to conclude that early next year Mr. Roosevelt, if reelected, will discern and proclaim need for addition relief appropriations and a further continuation of WPA.

Dr. Watson is preparing his staff to prolong the life of WPA for at least another 12 months. So, presumably, are all the other Dr. Watsons in all the other states. After one year comes another, is the disturbing truism that confronts harassed taxpayers. WPA may well prove to be the answer to the scientists' prayer for a perpetual motion machine. It has the will to go on forever.

THE STARS SAY

For Saturday, April 18

According to the lunar transits, this should be a day of activity and stirring events. These may not be of a happy or comforting influence, although friendship and kindly understanding may have a note of compensation. There is sign of distress or sorrow, possibly in connection with hospitals or other such institutions or places. In all there may be need for precaution against duplicity or double dealing. Domestic, social and effectual affairs flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of much activity, but this may be inspired by difficulties, sorrows or distress. In this, sympathetic and kindly friends may arise, and all pertaining to social, domestic and affectional relations may prove compensatory and encouraging. There are signs of strange or out of the ordinary experiences, with possible visits to hospitals or other institutions.

A child born on this day may have a deep, studious nature and fond of solitude and seclusion, although popular and attractive to elders and friends.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, April 17—Thoughts while strolling. The real New York people rarely hear about: When everything is going well it treats you casually. But let misfortune come and it's right on your door step to help. Add dramatically expressive hands—Claudette Colbert's.

Whatever became of Natacha Rambova? No one can zoom into a room like Herbert Bayard Swope. Or arrive so mouse-like as Sam H. Harris. Lawrence Tibbett has the most boyish speaking voice on the radio. In one year Major Bowes has become, next to the president, the best-known American.

Look alike. Paul Muni and Grover Whelan. When tastier dishes are devised, Bruno Lessing will write about them. Scarcely a pompadour left if anything happened to George S. Kaufman's. Every columnist would like to hit the bull's eye as regularly as Percy Crosby does with his cartoon.

No one could be quite so innocent as wide-eyed Peter Arno appears. Wonder if the advertising men Bill Mennen and Phil Lennen ever met? That superb public air of Nicholas Murray Butler. Be interesting to watch Gene Tunney dining at Dempsey's. Achmed Abdullah's jerky grin.

Poor Paul McCullough! For years depressed over being a stooge. Theodore Dreiser window shopping—and munching an apple. Fitting preacher name: Christian F. Reiser. Gilbert Seldes might be a philosophical mayor in Brittany. Ed Sullivan thinks Ernest Hemingway a crack name for a Wodehouse butler.

The pin games mushrooming with all the up-shoot of midget golf have shown great durability—but many believe they are edging the predicted debacle. In a year's time the promoters gobbled up practically every available high-priced corner along mid-town Broadway. Concessions were granted in the manner of the street carnival, and business boomed. Even stormy evenings they were packed. But for some weeks business has been on the dwindle and there have been legal interferences, too. Gambling routs. So many believe the end is in sight.

The dusky Josephine Baker proved what the drama critics contended on her stage debut here, i. e. that she is lost on a big stage and needed intimacy of a small room for her birdlike voice and snakey wriggles. Her new club—where she does exhibition dances with white boys—opened auspiciously. And whereas her revue performances were pretty much flops she became for a time at least a "night club draw."

The most popular night club hostess New York has ever known was, of course, Texas Guinan, with Helen Morgan a runner-up. For a short haul, Justine Johnson at her Little Club brought out the minkiest and top hatted crowd. Harry Richman established the all time high for male cabaret performers as an attraction at a Club named for him several years ago. And, of course, at the moment the Milwaukee-born old timer, Benny Fields has outdistanced the pack in a cake walk prance with silk hat aloft. A happy gesture toward a sky that for him a few weeks ago was as black as ink!

So far as I recall my first night club experience in New York was at Risenweber's in Columbus Circle. Sophie Tucker was an attraction, but in those days slightly overshadowed by Doraldino, who died the other day. She was first of the hula dancers, a Hawaiian from Muncie, Ind., and her wiggles were considered a bit naughty in those hallowed days. Among those pointed out to me by my cicerone were Mae Murray, the Dolly Sisters, Foxhall Keene, Nils Florman and Larry and Monty Waterbury, the polo stars.

(Issue of April 17, 1916)

The measles epidemic in this city is apparently on the increase, despite efforts being made by the health officer and authorities to check it. Thirty cases were reported last week, compared with 21 the preceding week.

Members of the Salem Press club were hosts to fellow scribes of Columbiana county, nearby cities and towns Saturday evening at a dinner and meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. The meeting was held with a view to forming a Columbiana County Press club.

The first baseball team of the season was played at Reilly field Saturday afternoon between the North Ends and a team from Greenford, the latter winning by a score of 2 to 1 after 11 innings of play.

Inflated balloons, inflated egos, and inflated currencies come to a common end.—Detroit Free Press.

Consult Doctor

WHY IS it so many avoid consulting their doctors about vital health problems? This is difficult to understand because most persons have great respect and admiration for the family doctor and confidence in his skill.

Yet daily I receive a letter from somebody who hesitates to consult his doctor. "I do not think the matter is important and do not wish to bother the doctor," is a common excuse. Yet, if neglected, many a "trivial" matter leads to serious and even fatal complications.

Often a sufferer from some chronic disorder avoids the doctor for fear of being told he has tuberculosis, cancer or some affliction he regards as "incurable." This is a great pity, because neglect or failure to obtain the necessary medical attention may lead to one of those dreaded conditions.

Unnecessary Worry
Many a man refrains from going to the doctor because at some time he has been told by somebody that he had heart disease. Naturally, he fears the doctor may advise curbing all activities. I sympathize with such a person. For one to be told he has heart disease is certainly alarming and discouraging.

Too often the sufferer believes he will be the victim of a sudden and early death. Let me assure you that much of this worry is quite unnecessary. In most instances, apprehension is uncalled for, because the activities of normal life need not be lessened.

Bear in mind that many minor ailments of the heart are falsely called "heart disease." The skip of a pulse beat now and then, or some other symptom, is likely to be nothing but a functional disturbance.

Perhaps in this field the most common cause for alarm is when a mother is told her child has a "heart murmur." Many children have heart murmurs. It is a condition usually temporary, disappearing within a short time. Even if the murmur is of an organic type, there is no need for alarm, providing medical attention is obtained.

Once of Prevention
I cannot overstate the danger of accepting physical defects as being "trivial" on the one hand, or "incurable" on the other. Let your doctor determine whether the disorder is temporary and harmless, or that it is one requiring medical or surgical attention.

Above all, let me warn you against depending too much on home remedies or patent medicines. Harm may be done by following advice given by some well-meaning friend but one who is not qualified to determine the importance of ailments. Years of training and experience are essential to safe advice; your doctor has these requirements.

Periodic visits to the physician are advised for the infant and young child, as well as the adult. We are now in the era of what is called "preventive medicine." Let us avail ourselves of all the advantages modern science has to offer. Your doctor is familiar with every new advance. Consequently he is in a position to help you guard your health and prevent disease and permanent disability.

Urges Boost In Public

Salem has a birth rate of 24 per thousand population, the speaker said. The death rate is 15 per thousand population. However, Salem vital statistics include many from the northern part of Columbia county, the territory served by hospitals and other agencies.

Key pointed out that desirable progress has been made in lowering the death rate among younger age groups and that health examination and correction of defects is an integral part of the public health program will do much in building up the health of the future generation.

Health authorities indicate that there has not been much improvement in the middle and advanced ages of life, he said.—heart disease, cancer, kidney and other diseases of later middle, afford opportunity for more effective health service in the future. The speaker gave the following figures for Salem for 1935: There were 275 births, 192 deaths. The deaths included 4 deaths from tuberculosis, 12 from pneumonia, 21 from cancer; 1 from influenza. The total toll of death was from heart disease, which took 61 lives.

Key spoke of the unnecessary deaths from accidents. He stated that nearly 100,000 persons were killed in the United States in 1935. About 36,000 in motor vehicle accidents. In Salem there were 22 deaths from accidents, 10 of them due to the automobile.

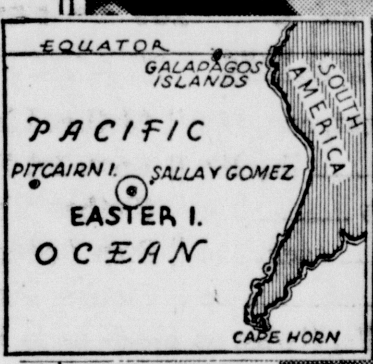

Urges More Health Funds
The speaker stated that Salem spends about 38 cents per capita for public health. He pointed out that health authorities indicate a dollar per capita should be appropriated for public health in a city of this size, if the fullest measure of life conservation is to be obtained.

What do the figures on health and accidents really signify? Key asked, in concluding his address. The answer lies in the opportunity and is within the scope of service of your membership. Informed and intelligent interest on your Investigation of these Franco-Belgian scientists support the conclusion that the much-discussed carvings and huge stone monuments on the island are not the work of a prehistoric race which disappeared when some lost continent sank into the ocean. The expedition concluded from its work that the statues were the creation of comparatively recent times, that the island was not the remnant of a lost continent, although the monuments were quarried right there on the island. THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeanette Young Norton

SPRINGTIME OR autumn, it's always pie time, and there are always happy faces when mother announces that a batch of home-baked pies is on hand. So we thought that today should be pie day with plenty of pie talk.

We'll begin with a recipe for plain pastry and one for hot water pastry. For the latter, cream three quarters of a cup of lard and beat in half cup boiling water. Cut in three cups of flour and one teaspoon salt sifted together. Chill. Roll out. Bake a shell at 425 degrees for about 15 minutes.

For the plain pastry, sift two cups pastry flour with three-quarters teaspoon salt. Cut in ten tablespoons lard with a dough blender. Do not cut it in too finely. There should be pieces of fat as large as peas through the mixture. Add five tablespoons water all at once and mix with a fork until the pastry gathers together and leaves the sides of the bowl clean. Roll out. Bake a shell at 450 degrees for about 15 minutes. This will make a double crust pie or two shells.

Strawberry Pie

With strawberries as good as they are this year, let's have a strawberry chiffon pie. Line a nine-inch pie pan with pastry, making a fluted rim. Prick well. Bake at 450 degrees, 12 to 18 minutes. Add one tablespoon gelatin to quarter cup cold water. Beat four egg yolks slightly, add half cup sugar, one tablespoon lemon juice and half teaspoon salt. Cook in double boiler until thick, stirring constantly. Add softened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add one cup crushed strawberries and juice; heat one minute. Cool. When mixture has thickened and becomes somewhat stiff, fold in the egg whites beaten stiff, to which has been added quarter cup sugar. Fill the cold pie shell. Chill. Top with half to one cup of heavy whipped cream and quarter to half cup sliced strawberries.

"It has never been the custom before in either party to oppose a governor seeking re-nomination," Pickrel said.

Imhoff praised the New Deal, but made no comment on the Ohio gubernatorial situation. John F. Nolan, county Democratic chairman, told the gathering that it was "not good sportsmanship for Governor Davey to have opposition."

The Home Kitchen

By Jeanette Young Norton

HERE'S A BUNCH of assorted household hints offered in answer to requests for information.

One reader requested information about household leathers and how to wash them. These leathers, such as chamois, goat and sheep skin, can be washed by gently squeezing them in warm water and mild soap suds. It is a good notion to add a little olive oil to the rinsing water. Do not wring, but dry by squeezing in a cloth. Rub frequently while drying to prevent leather from becoming stiff and hard.

If you are seeking a substitute for chamois leather, you will find that pieces of velveteen serve the purpose. Silver and plate can be beautifully polished after cleaning, also a brilliant polish can be given furniture after applying the polish in the usual way. In fact, velveteen seems to give a more brilliant polish than does rubbing with any other material.

Cleaning Shades

Another request was for a method of cleaning linen shades. Only too often we find an otherwise clean room having dirty window shades. There is no excuse for this and so we'll take down the dirty shades and spread them on a table covered with an old towel, or we'll place them over the side of the bath. Then we'll scrub them gently with an old nail brush and a lather of soap and warm water. But don't get the shades wetter than you can help. Wipe off the suds with a damp cloth, roll the shades carefully and tightly and affix them again in their place on the windows. They should then be pulled down and left until quite dry.

Now about washing those colored fabrics and helping retain the tint. It is a good notion to drop a handful of salt in the water in which blue things are to be washed; a tablespoon of powdered alum for green things; a few drops of strained tea for all shades of brown. Use a few drops of red ink for reds and pinks and a few drops of vinegar for blacks. This will prevent that faded look. Crocheted things retain their freshness if washed in lukewarm milk instead of water.

Mattresses will last much longer and will be easier to turn if they have handles on each side. These can be made of straps of ticking an inch wide and of a length equal to the thickness of the mattress. They should be sewn on about two feet from either end, two on each side of the mattress.

To remove rust from iron or steel, cover the rusty parts with sweet oil and leave for 24 hours. Then rub with a cork and the marks will quickly disappear. Finish by rubbing with a cloth that has been moistened with kerosene.

A tip for those who wish to know how to mend china in an emergency is to keep some powdered alum on hand. The alum makes quite a good cement for china if it is melted in a spoon over a flame and applied to the china while still hot.

Irene Dunn and Robert Taylor are seen in the starring roles in "Magnificent Obsession" showing at the State tonight and tomorrow. The cast includes Charles Butterworth, Betty Furness, Sara Haden, Ralph Morgan, Henry Armetta, Beryl Mercer and Cora Sue Collins. The story was adapted from Lloyd C. Douglas' novel.

Robert Taylor plays a young wastrel whose rescue from drowning permits a famous surgeon to die. Irene Dunn is the doctor's widow who is blinded by Taylor's carelessness. With tragedy stalking their lives, these two fall in love with each other. Taylor makes up his mind to make something of himself to be worthy of Miss Dunn's love. He redeems himself in her eyes and his own by working and studying, finally becoming a great eye surgeon.

Miss Dunn was chosen as one of the world's ten greatest ladies of the present time in an interview given in Paris recently by Elsa Maxwell. Miss Dunn was the only screen player on Miss Maxwell's list, which included Mrs. Vincent Astor, The Duchess of Sutherland, Alice Roosevelt Longworth and the Marchioness of Carisbrooke.

Irene Dunn was born in Louisville, Ky., in 1904. She was educated in the public schools there, later going to the exclusive Loretta academy. She had additional musical study in the cities of St. Louis and Chicago. She was seen in several successes before going into the movies. "Show Boat" was her greatest hit with "Irene," "Sweetheart Time" and "The Singing Vines" all very popular. Her screen hits have included "Back Street," "Cimarron," "Age of Innocence," "Sweet Adeline" and "Roberta."

Robert Taylor was born in Beatrice, Neb., in 1911. He graduated from Pomona college in California in 1933. His work in college plays Centuries-Old Monopoly on 2,500,000 Eels!

M. Thuot, right, and helper taking eels from a section of his private dam.

Dipping eels from one of the weirs.

Nature and the persistence of ancient French feudal traditions in Quebec province preclude any possibility of an unemployment problem for M. Pierre Thuot, heir to a centuries-old eel-fishing concession in the Richelieu river at Iberville, Quebec. He makes an annual, exclusive haul of around 2,500,000 of the stream-lined anguilla-anguilla which originate far off in the Sargasso sea and reach his weirs via the St. Lawrence river. His annual catch is worth $100,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 17.—Wheat jumped more than 2 cents a bushel early today, influenced by persistent absence of an adequate moisture relief for crops in drought territory southwest. There also were indications that winter killing of wheat in central states was greater than had been expected.
Opening 1/2 to 1 cent higher, May 98 1/4-3/4, July 90 1/4-3/4, wheat then rose further. Corn started unchanged to 1/2 up, May 61 1/4-1/4, and soon showed a general advance.

Correction of Constipation* Is Often a Matter of Menus

For years, the medical profession has insisted that proper diet is more effective in promoting health than the indiscriminate use of patent medicines. Today, they are seeing their teachings bear fruit.

For instance, millions of families have learned that common constipation is largely due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. Many of them correct this condition by the regular use of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

This delicious cereal supplies generous "bulk" in effective form. Within the body, its "bulk" absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass. Gently this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and contains iron. It may be served as a cereal with milk or cream, or cooked into tempting muffins, breads, etc.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Stubborn cases may require ALL-BRAN oftener. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all"—but it does correct common constipation. It is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MAY PUT TAX ON CEMETERY LOTS

All Ohio Cemetery Associations Would Also Have Licenses

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, April 17. — State Commerce Director Alfred A. Benesch, working on a possible new weapon, taxation, against speculation in cemetery lots, predicted today all Ohio Cemetery Lot associations would take out licenses by June 1.

Benesch said none of the 23 associations had obtained a license yet but indicated he was confident they would fall in line. He sent out a direct order recently prohibiting the sale of lots for speculative or investment purposes and predicted it would eradicate most abuses in the practice.

Asserting that a Cleveland police captain owned $80,000 worth of lots and an Ironton woman $29,000, Benesch said taxation would discourage individual purchases of such size.

"If the people still want to buy cemetery lots for investment after that," he said, "we can not afford them any more protection. The department merely is trying to prevent misrepresentation by salesmen and to caution the public against wholesale purchases of cemetery lots."

He said the normal price of a four-grave lot ranged from $125 to $500.

system, in regard to sending players there.

Plans for remodeling the playing place here include the erection of a grandstand and other seats to accommodate 4,000 persons.

Injuries And Sickness Cause Early Managerial Headaches

Jimmy Foxx Begins To Pay Dividends To Yawkey With First Home Run Of Season

Many of Game's Ace Pitchers, Including the Irrepressible Dean Brothers, Are Already Smarting Under Early Season Defeats

By ANDY CLARKE, Associated Press Sports Writer.

Baseball's professional mourners, the managers, already wailing over a dose of sickness, injuries and form reversals.

With the season but three days old, Joe Cronin, the priced playing manager of the Red Sox has a broken arm, Ben Chapman of the Yankees is suffering from a sprain in his side which caused him to retire from yesterday's game with Washington and Dick Bartell of the Athletics is in the sick bed suffering from gripe.

Adding further managerial headaches are the games already lost by many of the ace pitchers, including the irrepressible Dean Brothers, are already smarting under early season defeats and a gust of typhoid fever has been blowing around Casey Stengel.

On the other side of the ledger, the Boston Red Sox saw Jimmy Foxx, who hit Hank Greenberg for home runs in each of the last two games, start his first home run trip of the year.

Cronin is expected to be out of action for two or three weeks with a fracture of the thumb, suffered as the Red Sox drubbed Athletics 10-4. In the second game, Pinky Higgins charged in, second base and Cronin, after tagging the ball, tagged him. The manager continued to play but he reached the hospital and a rumor became so painful and a rumor became so painful and a rumor became so painful.

McNeil was moved over to the shortstop berth and John Krumer, a rookie from Syracuse, played third.

Paul Dean who watched Brother Sam's dismal performance in the game, was the victim of a defeat by the Cubs. The team established a two-run lead in the second inning but the Cubs came back in the fifth to score four runs on the ball game. Paul hit with a pitched ball to tie the score and three hits in two more passes completed the damage.

Giants Win There were shades of the days of Babe Herman did acrobatics for the far pastures for the Dodgers as the Giants notched their straight win over Brooklyn.

The tying and winning runs came in the ninth inning when Jorden and Lindstrom of the Flatbushers collided while attempting to catch what appeared to be an easy fly.

Bartell, who was fined $25 for being with Van Mungo Wednesday, was confined to his home with a bruised leg along with Gripper but Mungo was back on the firing line. He relieved Ed Wright in the fifth and baffled his foes until the game slipped from his grasp in the ninth.

Chapman left the fray in the ninth inning but the Yankees came on to defeat the Washington Senators 6-5. Five pitchers, three of whom served in this game, yielded a total of 29 safe hits to the Yank's 15 hits were extra bases, George Selkirk got a homer, triple and a single.

Pirates Start Defeat The Senators were dropping their first game in three starts. Pirates also were getting their taste of defeat. The Cincinnati Reds hung up their first victory of the year as they downed the Bucs 4-1. Bud Hefey whaled out his second homer of the year in the first inning while Cuyler and Goodman of the Reds hit for round trips.

At 3:00 fans turned out to see the Reds down the Boston Bees 4-1. The Bees went into the eighth trailing 7-1, tallied three runs on a homer by Hal Lee and came back to get another in the ninth before their rally was ended.

Tigers-Indians, Browns-Sox games were postponed because of cold weather.

Clarence Burman Wins by Knockout

DAYTON, April 17.—Eddie Slake, 194, South Bend, Ind., lasted only two rounds of a scheduled ten-round fight with Clarence "Red" Burman, 178, New York, who won by a knockout last night. In the semi-final, Alabama Kid, 160, Dayton, and Roughhouse Glover, 160, Cincinnati, fought to a draw. Bobby Craft, 168, Dayton, in the first round of a six-rounder, knocked out Jess Schleicher, 162, Washington Court House.

32 BOXERS REACH AAU SEMI-FINALS

Stand On Threshold Of Boxing's Hall of Fame Today

By FRITZ HOWELL, Associated Press Sports Writer.

CLEVELAND, April 17.—Thirty-two kids from 15 states stood on the threshold of the fistic hall of fame today—just a step or two away from the National A. A. U. championships toward which 286 started battling their way two days ago.

The semi-finals and finals will be staged tonight in Cleveland's public hall, the winners of the last round events taking the eight A. A. U. titles. All the entrants in tonight's fights get a chance at Olympic berths, and will take part in the qualifier at Chicago next month.

New York leads the list with five semi-finalists, and Ohio is next with four. Michigan, California and Illinois have three entrants each, while two represent New Jersey, Massachusetts, Indiana and Pennsylvania. Virginia, Louisiana, Washington, D. C., Maryland, Idaho and Oklahoma have one entrant each.

Only 16 Knockouts Only 16 of last night's 96 bouts—the last of the three-ring circus—ended in knockouts. All of tonight's events will be staged in the same ring.

Two surprises marked the quarter-finals. Troy Bellini of Cleveland, whose drumming fists won him the national 118-pound crown a year ago, skidded out of the 126-pound competition as the result of a drubbing from Lou Gevinson of the nation's capital.

The other upset—and the decision drew a round of boos from the crowd—came when Willard Dean of Shreveport, La., was given the nod over Jack Wofford of Los Angeles in the heavyweight division. Wofford appeared to have a healthy edge all the way, and had the southerner in a bad way several times, but the judges saw it the other way.

Willis Johnson of Detroit, huge Negro, broke his hand in the last round of his winning scrap with Joe Kempinger of Kansas City.

GEORGE SELKIRK, Yankees — Led 15-hit attack on Washington pitchers with home run, triple and single.

JIMMY FOXX, Red Sox — Hit first home run of season with two on against Athletics.

HANK KREIBER, Giants — His second double in the ninth drove in the two runs that defeated Brooklyn 7-6.

JOHN MOORE, Phillies — Found Boston pitchers for homer and three singles in five times at bat.

LARRY FRENCH, Cubs — Kept Cards' 10 hits well scattered to beat Paul Dean.

KIKI CUYLER and IVAL GOODMAN, Reds — Their home runs were big factor in 7-4 victory over Pirates.

A. A. TOP TEAMS RECEIVE BREAK

Weatherman Good To St. Paul and Louisville In Association

CHICAGO, April 17.—The Louisville Colonels and St. Paul Saints topped the American association in the number of games won today—largely through a break from the weather man.

While Kansas City and Minneapolis were prevented by the cold from playing their scheduled games yesterday with Indianapolis and Toledo, respectively, Louisville was beating Milwaukee 8-3 and St. Paul was trimming Columbus 7-6. Kansas City and Minneapolis each have won two games and lost none.

The Colonels, in taking the victory which gave them the series with the Brewers, three games to one, had fine pitching from Ed Holley, who allowed seven hits and fanned ten. St. Paul took advantage of misplays by the Red Birds to take their third victory in four games. Two errors in the ninth, with two out, paved the way for Larry Rosenthal's home run which drove in three runs.

66 Teams from Schools In Three States Complete At Mansfield

(By Associated Press) MANSFIELD, April 17.—Sixty-six teams from schools in three states will compete here Saturday in the renewal of the Mansfield relays.

Approximately 1,000 athletes will take part in the event and attempt to wrest the meet title from Toledo Scott High school. Scott led the field both in 1934 and 1935.

Four out-of-state schools, East and Strong Vincent High schools of Erie, Pa., Canonsburg, Pa., and Fairmont, W. Va., have entered teams in the meet.

Three Cleveland teams, East Tech, Collinwood and Shaw, are regarded as strong contenders for the title held by Toledo Scott.

Preliminary trials in the relays will be held in the morning, finals in the afternoon. Many of the schools have entered Junior High school teams in special events.

State individual champions who will compete will include Don Whittaker, Sandusky, pole vault; Charles Walker, Toledo Scott, broad jump; Bob Curtis, Cleveland Shaw, mile; Haven Robinson, Cleveland East Tech, 100 and 220-yard dashes.

Major Prize The major prize of the meet is the Ohio State trophy, presented to the team champion. Stella Walsh, Olympic star, will appear in a special race.

Schools entered are: Toledo Scott, Woodward, Devillish and Libbey; Cleveland East Tech, Shaw, West Tech, John Marshall, Rhoads, Central, Cathedral Latin, Collinwood and Lincoln; Akron Goodrich, Garfield, West, South and North; Mansfield, Bryan, Springfield, Ontario, Jackson, Greenville, Mansfield Madison, Lorain, Elyria, Salem, Ashley, Fremont, Delaware, Canton McKinley, Brecksville, East Palestine, Upper Arlington, Columbiana, Newark, Kent Roosevelt, Willard, Ashtabula, Barberton, Bellville and the four teams from Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

National Cash Register Team to Defend Crown At Columbus

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS, April 17. — Sharpshooters will shoot the works in the Fort Hayes drill hall from tomorrow noon until late Sunday in the fifth annual Ohio team championship gallery rifle matches.

This match is open to four-man teams, each man firing ten shots in each position, prone, kneeling and standing. League champions will shoot it out in the second major event Sunday morning for the governor's trophy. To be eligible for this trophy, a team must have won the championship of a league during the past winter season.

Among teams expected to enter are Toledo, Zeppelin and Goodrich of Akron, Tusco of Uhrichsville, National Cash Register, Zanesville, and Hamilton. The Tusco club is the defending trophy holder.

Youngstown Co-Ed Wants To Be Chip Off The Old Block

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, April 17. — Betsy Molsberry, dark-haired Youngstown girl who expects to be the first co-ed to receive a civil engineering degree from Ohio State university, smiled over her trisquare today and announced:

"I want to be a real engineer, not a pseudo one."

Betsy is, so to speak, a chip off the old block. Her father, Howard C. Molsberry, is a civil engineer for a Youngstown steel company.

Graduates in June

When she was a little girl, she took an interest in his work. When she was in high school the family decided that since she was the oldest daughter and had no brothers, she should become an engineer.

Several Ohio State university co-eds have started civil engineering courses, but Betsy will be the first to complete the four-year course. She will be graduated in June.

College instructors pointed out when she enrolled that she could be excused from field work and several courses required of men.

Said Betsy and her father: "The whole works or nothing." Last summer she helped her classmates survey a damsite in Athens county and the summer before worked in the drafting room of a Youngstown steel company. The subject of her thesis is "Surveying Instruments." She is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers. Close though she is to surveying her main interest today was sports. "The baseball season is open," she explained.

"DAUGHTERS OF VENUS"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

CHAPTER XXXIII

O'Hara's words hit Madame Hubert like bullets and she spun around, as though to avoid hearing them, and faced Juliet.

"Who was it picked O'Hara up when he was down and out?" she screamed. "Not you! I put him in a hospital and brought him back to health—paid all his bills too. I took him into the Institute and taught him the business. Year after year I gave him his big salary. It was more than words and kisses that I gave O'Hara."

"Please get her out of here at once!" Juliet implored both men, but the screaming woman fought them off.

"I made a man of him!" she cried wildly. "When he went out in public he went with me. Other women were jealous because he wouldn't look at them. Every girl in the Institute went after him but none of them got him—not one! Is a man true to a woman like that unless he loves her? I tell you, he was completely devoted to me. Faithful, faithful, faithful! What kind of a woman would I be if I let you snatch him away? You and your tricks and schemes!"

She poured out her vituperation in a stream that none of them could stop, her voice shrilling above all protests. It was as though a tornado filled the room.

Fact and imagination were inextricably mixed up in what the raving creature screamed. Her outpouring of feeling swept on and on. Only by throttling could she have been silenced. Ancient repression and grievance and the accumulated passions of a turbulent soul exploded before their eyes.

O'Hara listened, stricken with astonishment.

Interruption, at last, came suddenly. With a dash and a cry Katie Schmidt flew across the room. She seized Madame Hubert by the shoulders and shook the gayly decked old body like a rat with her wild young strength before she flung it violently against the wall.

It was Juliet who called out, "Don't—please. Don't hurt her!" "Oh, you terrible old hag!" howled Katie. "How can you tell those horrible lies about Mr. O'Hara? Love you? If you could only see yourself in a looking glass you'd shut up about love! For two cents I'd slap your silly face!"

Madame Hubert leaned against the wall, trembled and panted while a tiny dew of perspiration gathered on her bloodless upper lip.

Suddenly, she began to laugh wildly, hysterically, until the eerie sound penetrated walls and doors and rang out through the windows with spine-shivering cadence.

"You little fool!" she cried. "She has deceived you too! She has made cats' paws of you all!"

"Lay off that!" snarled back

Katie in her best gutter manner. "He never give a darn about you. Miss Juliet had nothin' to do with it. If O'Hara loves anybody he loves me! What do you think of that? It's me that has been going out with him—not her. You oughta get out of here and go home before you fall apart!"

Not for nothing had Madame Hubert been a gamine in the streets of Paris where screaming and biting and face-scratching were the accepted arts of combat.

She was old now and her joints creaked, but she sprang to the challenge like a maddened cat. With a scream, high and as keen as a panther's, she lunged at the girl, Katie, despite her brashness, fell back fighting against the wild clawing attack that almost instantly left livid scratches on her pink and white cheeks.

O'Hara and Von Guerdon rushed forward, but it was like separating two untamed sea-animals locked in a death struggle.

An imperative knocking came at the door. It was the manager trying to make himself heard through the panels.

"What's going on in there, Miss Rankin? Open the door quickly, please. The neighbors are complaining. Somebody has phoned the police."

A deep contempt for what she witnessed rose up in Juliet.

She stood pressed against the wall in the farthest corner of the room—the clean, spruce-furnished living room that had become, so suddenly, a suffocating pit crowded with hoarse bestial cries, screams, curses and the infuriating struggle of swaying bodies.

They overturned chairs and ash trays, careened against a low table and sent a flower vase shattering to the floor with its water sopping the chaste pale blue rug. Pottery fragments and long-stemmed blossoms were trampled under foot.

She had a tortured longing to rush free from all this bedlam—to vanish into the dark, cool, clean night outside, but she could not move her numbed limbs. "Is this frenzied spectacle the outgrowth of my way of life?" she wondered. "Why does it descend upon me—here in the privacy of my own home?" She saw everything through a ghastly fog, a noxious vapor.

"I started it by mingling passion with O'Hara," she cried with inner despair. "I encourage Von Guerdon. Opened my doors to a girl as brazen as Katie Schmidt. I've stirred and mixed the whole evil nauseous compound. My friends! Not a one is a friend. They all want something from me, each one."

Yes, they were all enemy intruders, a black brood bringing anguish and degradation and disaster. All except Von Guerdon and he, too, wanted to take her whole life and possess it.

If the infernal racket kept up the police would soon be here. A raid. Newspaper publicity—a drunken party ending up in police court. The whole place was stained . . . besmirched.

The brawl before Juliet's eyes increased in fury. O'Hara, perspiring, and Von Guerdon, white and determined, had not been able to separate the two raving females who fought like savages, lost balance and fell kicking and clawing to the door.

Juliet became so faint that her trembling knees all but gave way. Everything before her trembled like an illusion. Tears came and obscured her vision.

Dimly she could hear the manager outside knocking on the door. The knocking increased imperatively above the snarling that filled the room as the two men struggled to tear apart Katie and Madame Hubert.

Then, all at once, it was finished. Madame Hubert's ever-screaming voice stopped suddenly and she slipped out of Katie's grasp and slumped inertly on the floor. Her face was wooden and still, her eyes horribly open.

"It's her heart," said Von Guerdon, over her.

Katie, panting and sobbing and disfigured, fled to a bedroom. Her glass beads were all over the floor. The expert fingers of Von Guerdon found Madame Hubert's pulse. Somehow he still looked poised and well-groomed. He arose, his face expressionless.

"What has happened?" asked Juliet.

"A deep swoon. Somebody quiet that fellow at the door. No—I'll handle it."

Von Guerdon crossed the room and pulled the door open a few inches. His voice was quietly authoritative.

"Madame Hubert has had a severe nervous attack, followed by a swoon," he said to the alarmed manager. "I'm the physician in charge. We are going to move her home as soon as possible. There will be no further noise."

He shut off conversation by firmly closing the door in the man's face.

O'Hara, with his necktie askew, returned from the kitchen with a glass of water and knelt to bathe Madame Hubert's face with a handkerchief. His own countenance had an appalled look.

"She'll be all right in a few moments," said Von Guerdon, again at her pulse. "We'll get her home in my car."

O'Hara faced Juliet, his broad shoulders sagging. "I feel like the dirtiest cur on earth."

"Don't apologize—you couldn't help it," said Juliet tonelessly. And then to Von Guerdon. "Is there any way I can help?"

"Yes, go into your bedroom and stay there. And keep that Schmidt girl out of sight. I don't want Madame Hubert to see either of you here when she recovers." Crisp military commands.

Juliet's heart had a swollen throbbing feeling and all of her muscles were weak as water. She walked out of the room in a daze, shut herself in her own bedroom. Throwing herself on the bed, she curled up despondently. Voices from the other room came through the wall as mere murmurs and presently ceased altogether.

Too many thoughts were beating at her brain—it was impossible to sort them out. Von Guerdon had been right about Madame Hubert. The old woman's morale had transformed into positive mania. O'Hara was drifting without a rudder, driven by all sorts of cross-currents.

In contrast, Von Guerdon stood out a Gibraltar of dependability. And what of Madame Hubert's frenzied threat to discharge them all from the Institute?

Was Gottlieb's contract actually unbreakable? A hundred thousand dollars at stake. One thing after another whirled in Juliet's heated brain.

The picture of those two women fighting—one young, one old—recurred like a ferocious nightmare.

Their waxy artificial appearance. The handiwork of Von Guerdon. The human masterpieces of the Institute's art.

Katie came into the room timidly.

She was in a kimono, her eyes glassy—hard, and her face swollen and furrowed with fresh red scratches.

"Wasn't it awful, Miss Juliet?"

Katie herself had no sense of awfulness but she sensed the shame Juliet felt. It was Katie, not her employer, who had been a principal actor in the row. Her egotism expanded despite her hurts and gave her a deep draught of self-importance. By sheer brassiness she had established a public connection with O'Hara that lost none of its thrill because it had led to a fight.

"It was ghastly!" said Juliet, sitting on the edge of the bed and throwing the hair back from her pale face. "I was afraid she'd die at any moment."

"Didn't I tell her though?" declared Katie with a glow of pride. "Can you imagine the old devil being in love with Mr. O'Hara! And accusing you of coming between them! That's what burnt me up."

"Did they get her downstairs all right?" asked Juliet.

"Oh, sure. I peeked out and they were both carrying her. I certainly feel sorry for Mr. O'Hara."

A question—a vaguely nagging worry that Juliet had been trying to stifle struggled out of its cocoon.

"You said something tonight I didn't quite understand," she said in a voice of hesitation. "You said if O'Hara loved anybody, he loved you. Is that—true?"

Katie had a shrewd idea it was wise to retreat into a bewildered innocence. Evasion was always better than an outright lie. She opened her eyes wide and looked surprised.

"Did I say that?"

"You did."

"Oh, I must have been trying to distract the old devil's attention from you," she said quickly. "Can you imagine! Naturally, I think quite a lot of Mr. O'Hara and I guess maybe he likes me a little too. But he never has once said anything about being in love with me. Do you suppose it embarrassed him—me saying that right out in front of everybody?"

Juliet was conscious of a growing and excessive weariness towards the silly girl. O'Hara certainly must have been in a pretty muddy state of mind recently to find any pleasure in such tawdry companionship. Whether he knew it or not, it was plain his grip was slipping. Unless something saved him a crash was inevitable.

"The whole affair was so poisonous I don't want to talk about it," Juliet declared, weighed down with revulsion. "Let's hear no more about it, please. You had better go on to your bed."

Juliet stood motionless, tortured by the furnished misery of loneliness, in the center of the room. A cold sinking sensation of despair deadened her body, stagnated the very current of her blood.

Alone, she thought, too much alone. The mere act of going to bed would solve nothing, yet she undressed entirely and put on her silk sleeping pajamas. Her nerves set up a venomous crawling. In desperation, she turned on a warm shower. The water beat on her dry skin like a storm and she emerged seeking relaxation in the friction of a rough towel. Gradually she was becoming vivid and wider awake.

Completely without clothes and with her slender body in a pink glow from the rub, she went to the telephone beside her bed and picked it up.

Before she called the operator, Juliet paused, sat on the side of the bed and wept softly. After the first few tears she felt better, but only slightly.

Never before in her whole life had she yearned so hungrily for the simple comforting sweetness of intimate sympathy. All of her existence—except for that brief interlude years ago—she had been on her own.

Even the ordinary consolation of relatives had been denied her, for she was an orphan. From the time of childhood she had made her way, solitary and buoyed up by the struggle.

Always she had felt self-sufficient—not cold, but independent of any clinging weakness. No one, ever, had paid her way.

"I'm like Von Guerdon," she told herself sadly. "I've never given anything of my real self. I've waited and waited and missed the love that is the very fountain of life. I've never given warmth to anybody's freezing heart—so what can I expect? And now I stand alone, afraid of the long dark road."

Then courageously, she powdered her nose and picked up the telephone again.

PAUL H. WENDEL
IS EXONERATED

Must Remain In Jail Because Warrant Sworn Out By Mrs. Hauptmann Is Still Pending

(By Associated Press)
TRENTON, N. J., April 17.—The last desperate attempt of Mrs.
Bruno Richard Hauptmann to halt the electrocution of her husband delayed today the release of Paul H. Wendel despite his exoneration by the Mercer county grand jury of implication in the Lindbergh kidnap-murder.

Wendel was held in jail here because a murder warrant sworn out by Mrs. Anna Hauptmann in Hunterdon county the day Bruno Hauptmann died in the electric chair still was pending.
The jury voted "no bill" without dissent last night, and recessed, leaving little likelihood of further investigation of Wendel or collateral phases of his case.
The Wendel verdict will be presented to Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, presiding jurist of the county and the judge who sat at Hauptmann's trial, on April 28.

Brooklyn Wants Wendel
Any further developments in the Wendel case, it was indicated, would come from Brooklyn, N. Y., where authorities were investigating his story that he was imprisoned and tortured until he "confessed" the kidnap murder. Brooklyn authorities said they were anxious to have Wendel there as soon as possible to aid them in their inquiry.

Freedom for Wendel also was barred in this county by several old embezzlement indictments. Brooklyn officials were hopeful that Wendel would be admitted to bail on those charges so he could go with them.

The grand jury action constituted the first major defeat in many years of Ellis H. Parker, chief of Burlington county detectives, who obtained the Wendel "confessions." Parker told the grand jury he was staking his life's reputation as detective that Wendel was the Lindbergh kidnaper.

A Review of the Day's News

By Arthur Brisbane

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
DR. EMILY PIERSON says wage-earning women should be paid by government and be allowed to rest during the child-bearing period.

Does that sound unreasonable?
The government clothes, feeds and pays men that go out to fight, giving them bonuses and pensions afterwards. It might well pay brief wages to women that supply the fighters. Soldiers would not change places with them at childbirth time.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB, leaving for Europe, advises young men:
"Don't strive for riches. I have worked hard all my life and have accomplished much —but it means nothing."

Mr. Schwab, bound for Neuheim baths, good for the heart, knows that money means little, and these are the opportune times for taking the advice NOT TO GET RICH.

Schwab knows that piling up a few millions, as he has done, is no more than "breaking eighty" at golf, and not as good for the health.

ANOTHER SET of quintuplets were added to the world's baby population, but only for a short time. These are born to a gypsy woman on a farm in Transylvania, three of them boys and two girls.
The five were born in the field
after the mother, Maria Lingur-aru, 25, had gone out to work. Born prematurely, as were the Canadian quintuplets, the babies had no doctor to help them.
As in all similar cases, excepting the Dionnes, these children, lacking expert care, died in a few hours. However, the case will interest all mothers.

MISS OLIVERA, her trapeze work perfect, her English not quite fell, was hurt, but is back flying through the air, dropping one trapeze, catching another. She asks:
"Who could live without excitement?"

Only one thing makes her superstitious, the trumpeting of elephants. Also, when she dreams, as she often does, that the trapeze breaks, she does not like that, only "always I wake up before I hit the ground."

Evolutionists will tell her the dream dates back to a time when our ancestors lived in trees; the sleeping baby fell from the limb, caught a branch and saved himself and crawled back. Falling in sleep became deeply planted in his subconscious mind.

BOB SHERWOOD, once P. T.
Barnum's "champion acrobatic clown of the world," about to celbrate his 80th birthday, writes that time has passed "since we sat at the ringside to witness John L.

Sullivan chase Charley Mitchell around the twenty-four-foot ring near Chantilly, France." Unfortunately, it is not time, but ourselves that pass. Time remains.

THE CHILDREN are full grown that, at Fort Dodge, Ia., on July 1, 1880, sat under the big tent and trembling with excitement read P.
T. Barnum's announcement:

"Bob Sherwood, ahampion acrobatic clown of the world, in a double somersault over two elephants and six horses."

Bob Sherwood could not do that now, and wonders how he could ever do it, but he enjoys life.

THERE MUST be a line added for the fearless Mademoiselle Zazel, who watched Sherwood jump over the elephants and then, in Barnum's words, "leaps into space in her terrific aerial dive or eagle swoop, after which she is shot from the mouth of a monstrous cannon and projected over sixty feet."
She is probably dead now, rest her soul; no constitution could stand that.

HAILE SELASSIE gives up his "imperial headquarters" at Dessye without a fight; the Italians are within 145 miles of Addis Ababa, the capital.

There seems little chance of prolonged resistance unless Europe interfering seriously and England seems to have decided against that.
Mussolini holds every important caravan route leading to the capital.

AT STRATFORD, Conn., an amphibian—land and water plane — went up 27,950 feet.
There the sky seemed to be "a much deeper blue than seen from earth;" the temperature was 40 below.

This flight breaks two world's records. Such a plane, able to carry fifteen passengers, could fly across this country, above all possible storms or mountain collision, with a super-charged cabin for passengers.

Pictures of anti-religious rioting in Spain, published in the Paris Illustration, show church towers blazing, furniture thrown out of houses of the aristocracy made into a bonfire.

In the ruins of a big hall of the organization of Catholic workers in Madrid, children from ten to fifteen years old are shown enthusiastically raising their closed fists to the burned roof in the Communist salute.

We live in troubled days, but the future will learn, as the past has learned, that the way to get anything worthwhile is to work for it.
Too bad, but that is the rule.
